INTRODUCTION

The world of books encompasses classics of international renown and ephemeral pamphlets circulated locally, esoteric treatises on obscure subjects and collections of jokes or cartoons, technical manuals and practical everyday how-to-do-it instructions. A handicapped person should be, but often is not, free to read independently and at his own convenience with the same choice of materials as is open to his friends and business associates at a bookstore or public library. It is only through the dedicated efforts of volunteers who produce reading materials not otherwise available that he may attain this degree of variety in his reading. Whether the volunteer transcribes an economics textbook for a college student or a series of Supreme Court decisions for a lawyer, his is a contribution of special merit.

This directory lists the names of groups and some individuals who transcribe books and other reading materials for blind and physically handicapped persons. It has been compiled by the Volunteer Services Section of the Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped of the Library of Congress from information obtained through a questionnaire mailed to organizations or groups known to us. It is available in both print and braille. The listing is alphabetical by State, and each entry is assigned a number. In the index, services and specialties are listed, with references to these assigned numbers. Services are braille transcribing, large-type printing, tape recording, duplication, and binding; specialties include music, math, and languages. In separate sections are listed State special education consultants and proofreaders certified by the Library of Congress.

If you are active in producing reading materials for the blind and physically handicapped and your group has not been listed in this publication, please let us know of the omission so that the pertinent information can be included in future editions. Our address is Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20542.

Volunteer Services Section

Along with serving as a coordinator of volunteer activities, this Section trains braillists and proofreaders through correspondence; examines test transcriptions from braillists throughout the country for certification; assigns books for transcription upon request; directs the proofreading, duplicating, binding, and other processing of books received from volunteers for the Library of Congress; evaluates audition tapes; reviews tape-recorded books; and instructs in proper use of equipment and voice.

If you wish to become a volunteer braille transcriber, but prefer personal instruction to the correspondence course, you will find that most of the organized groups sponsor classes in braille. Many also offer instruction in tape recording and guidelines for presentation of large type materials.

You are cordially invited to visit the Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped at 1291 Taylor Street, N.W. We have ample parking space on the roof for those of you who are driving.

What This Directory Can Do For You

(1) You are a student who needs a tape-recorded book in French for a college course; you have written to the Library of Congress and the American Printing House for the Blind and have been informed that the title is not available:

> In the listing of specialties look under "French"; using the index numbers, locate a volunteer group that does tape recording and write to the Chairman asking for assistance.

(2) You are chairman of a volunteer group which transcribes textbooks for students in your city. One textbook includes musical examples, and none of the members of your group knows braille music notation:

> In the listing of specialties look under "Music"; using the index numbers, locate a volunteer group near you that transcribes braille music and ask the assistance of that chairman.

(3) Again, as chairman of a volunteer group concerned chiefly with braille transcribing, you wish to have your proofreading assignments done in the most expeditious manner:

The section "Proofreaders Certified by the Library of Congress" is arranged by State. There you will be able to locate the proofreaders closest to you and thus be able to apportion your proofreading so as to take advantage of comparatively lighter workloads as well as avoid unnecessary shipping delays.

(4) You are a businessman and newly elected president of the Lions Club. You need a braille copy of the constitution, annual report and other basic documents of the organization, as well as the monthly reports of chairmen and officers throughout the year:

In the listing of volunteers, look under your State and locate a group in a town or neighborhood near you. Explain your situation to the group chairman and ask for assistance.

(5) You are a certified braille transcriber who has moved to a new city and would like to affiliate with a group:

In the alphabetic listing, look under your State and town to locate a group. If there is no group in your community and you want to continue brailling, notify Volunteer Services Section, which will assign books to you for transcription and will see that you have an individual listing in the next edition of this directory.

(6) You are a government employee who needs to refer frequently to agency manuals or regulations, or an insurance agent who sometimes needs to consult a rate book, and you need these materials in braille in order to operate effectively and to meet your obligations to your employer.

Check the alphabetic listing to locate a volunteer group in your State and city, and make your needs known to the chairman.

(7) You are a homemaker planning a special social function. You need a couple of gourmet recipes in braille.

Again, check the alphabetic listing to locate a braille group in your area. Your request for the recipes is a small one that can be met in a hurry; and perchance the braillist may want to add them to her collection of delectable recipes.

These are just a few of the ways this directory may be used. Please let us know if there are any other features we could add to make it more valuable to you. Additions and corrections will be published in a later edition of the directory.

LET'S BE RIGHT ABOUT COPYRIGHT!

*by Carl W. Lappin

Publishers have been generous in granting free copyright clearances to transcribers of materials for blind and physically handicapped readers. Therefore, in return for this exceptional courtesy on the part of publishers and authors who hold copyright, transcribers are urged to acquaint themselves with proper procedures before undertaking a transcription. Your group chairman is probably aware of the procedures to follow and of the latest developments. Free sample copies of print books should not be requested of publishers since they have already made their contribution to our readers. Books should be purchased by the reader, the school system, the agency, or the library needing the transcription.

All books assigned by the Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped of the Library of Congress to a volunteer for transcription, whether in braille, large type, or tape, have been cleared through their respective copyright holders, and transcription can begin immediately.

The American Printing House for the Blind has negotiated blanket permissions from a number of publishers for the transcription into braille and recorded form of any of their titles. Copies of the lists are available on request from APH. If the publisher of the title you have been assigned is on the list, you need only report the intention to braille or record to the Instructional Materials Reference Center, American Printing House for the Blind, 1839 Frankfort Avenue, Louisville, Ky. 40206. If the publisher of the title you have been assigned is not on the list, you must write directly to the publisher for permission to make the transcription provided you have established that the book is not available elsewhere. (See Information on Available Books, page xi. When inquiring about a book, give author, title, publisher, and date.) If the book has been transcribed or recorded but is not available to you at the time, it may be necessary to provide another transcription, in which case copyright clearance has already been given. This second transcription, however, must be reported to the American Printing House.

* Director, Instructional Materials Reference Center, American Printing House for the Blind.

NOTE: If a transcription is made for an individual and is for his use only (not to be duplicated), the "fair use" principle applies, and you may transcribe one, and only one, copy of the book or any part of it without obtaining copyright clearance. This transcription for one use only should not be reported.

If you are asked to do an anthology or a collection of works by different authors that is to be duplicated, you must write directly to each individual copyright holder concerned for clearance.

The APH Central Catalog

The Central Catalog of Volunteer Produced Textbooks maintained in card-file form by the Instructional Materials Reference Center is a vital source of information for all workers for the blind who have need for materials in braille, large type, disc, and tape-recorded form.

Its purpose is twofold: (1) To coordinate the reporting efforts of the volunteer production of literature for the blind and provide reference service for those needing such materials; (2) To provide permissions and record clearances from publishers through blanket agreements extended by them. These agreements were jointly negotiated with the publishers by the Library of Congress, Recording for the Blind, and the American Printing House for the Blind. Lists of publishers granting blanket permissions are available from the IMRC/APH on request.

All agreements with the publishers have been made on the basis that permission records will be kept at the American Printing House for every transcription made. Therefore, it is imperative that no book be transcribed unless permission has been received. Books not covered by these agreements must be cleared by the individual transcribing group through direct contact with the appropriate publisher.

The Central Catalog's file of Intention Reports includes all titles which have been reported to the IMRC as in process, whether they are textbooks or trade books; i.e., fiction and supplementary reading. When a Completion is received, the Intention Report is removed and a completion card is made. If the title is a textbook, this card is filed under its subject heading in the Central Catalog. If the title is not a textbook, the completion card is forwarded to the Library of Congress, Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, Washington, D.C. 20542, which maintains a listing of general books in its Union Catalog of Hand-copied Books. Completion cards on Catholic texts are sent to Xavier Society for the Blind, 154 East 23rd Street, New York, N.Y. 10010.

Before reporting a book to the IMRC/APH, transcribers should check its availability in current published catalogs such as the following:

American Printing House for the Blind
1839 Frankfort Avenue
Louisville, Ky. 40206
(Braille, Large Type, Talking Books, Braille Music)

Jewish Guild for the Blind
1880 Broadway
New York, N.Y. 10023
(Braille)

National Braille Association
Braille Book Bank
85 Godwin Avenue
Midland Park, N.J. 07432
(Braille)

Recording for the Blind, Inc.
215 East 58th Street
New York, N.Y. 10022
(Disc or Tape Recordings)

Service from these card reference listings should be sought:

Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped
Library of Congress
Washington, D.C. 20542
(Braille, Braille Music, and Tape)

Xavier Society for the Blind
154 East 23rd Street
New York, N.Y. 10010
(Braille, Large Type, Recordings, Catholic textbooks)

If the book is not available from any of the above sources in the form desired, an inquiry should be made to the American Printing House, asking whether it is available elsewhere. Specifying the exact title, author, publisher, needed copyright date, school grade level, and media desired is essential. The few minutes spent by a group or an individual in carrying out these steps can save hours of unnecessary transcribing and make for full use of previous transcription.

An Intention Report should be submitted on forms which are available on request from the American Printing House. Each pad of report forms includes an instruction sheet. Transcribers are directed to send Intention Reports to IMRC when they start their transcription; when the book is finished, the transcriber should send one Completed Report to IMRC and another to the state or local depository. Care should be taken to complete these forms in full, including permission information. If a book is being transcribed, regardless of whether there is already a copy available, this should be so stated on the Intention Report. Each Intention Report is placed on file at the American Printing House and remains a part of our records until a Completion Report is received. The transcribing group should file the Completion Report as soon as the transcription is completed in order to keep the Catalog up to date.

To summarize:

FIRST—Check to see if the book is already available.

SECOND—Satisfy copyright requirements.

a. Requests from Library of Congress are already cleared.
b. Blanket agreements from publishers are available through IMRC/APH.
c. Others must be secured on individual basis by the transcriber.

THIRD—Notify IMRC/APH regarding progress of transcribing.

a. File INTENTION (before transcription is begun).
b. Send COMPLETION (as soon as transcription is finished).

ALWAYS—Advise immediately IMRC/APH of any status changes (loss, discard, moves, etc.) in transcriptions to keep information in Central Catalog current and accurate.

BRAILLE BOOK BANK

The Braille Book Bank, 85 Godwin Avenue, Midland Park, N.J. 07432, is sponsored by the National Braille Association, Inc. The Braille Book Bank is established to provide, in braille only, textbooks to blind students above the high school level, at a cost as close as possible to that of the inkprint. A catalog of the available books, inkprint only, may be obtained by sending 50¢ to Braille Book Bank at the above address. Supplements to this catalog are provided periodically.

RECORDING FOR THE BLIND

Recording for the Blind, Inc. (RFB) is a national, nonprofit, volunteer-centered organization, entirely gift-supported, which provides recorded educational books to anyone who cannot read normal printed material because of visual or physical handicaps. There is no comparable producer and repository of up-to-date recorded academic literature anywhere in the world. RFB not only records new books on request, but retains a master tape of every title it records and, through its Master Tape Library, supplies individual tape copies to any number of future borrowers.

RFB's Recording and Library services are offered free of charge to high school, college, and postgraduate students, as well as to adults who require educational material in the pursuit of their occupation. Over 4,000 carefully selected and supervised volunteers produce recorded texts at RFB's 22 units scattered across the country. As of January 1, 1970, RFB's library contains 15,000 titles in 14 languages: 9,000 on tape and 6,000 on discs. A new catalog of titles is issued every year in June.

Applications for RFB's services should be directed to Recording for the Blind, Inc., 215 East 58th Street, New York, N.Y. 10022.

THE ORIGIN OF BRAILLE

A blind high school student takes from a library shelf a volume of the 145-volume braille edition of the World Book Encyclopedia and consults it for information he needs to write a theme for class. A blind college student pecks away with a braille slate and stylus or braillewriter, taking notes from a lecture by one of his professors. A blind sports enthusiast consults the schedule of his favorite baseball team transcribed for him in braille by a volunteer transcriber. A somewhat more convivial individual sits at a table with a group of friends, sighted and/or blind, enjoying a game of poker or canasta, with the sighted players scarcely aware that the cards are marked in braille. A blind businessman jots down a telephone number in his looseleaf braille telephone book where he keeps a list of numbers he calls frequently. A blind housewife looks in her Better Homes and Gardens braille cookbook for a tasty recipe for a dish to serve expected guests. Smitten with misgivings about the excess calories, she may step onto a bathroom scale marked in braille with the hope of reassurance. A less domestic type may recline in bed (with lights out) enjoying the braille edition of a best-selling novel or the latest issue of Reader's Digest or National Geographic. All of these individuals owe an immeasurable debt of gratitude to the ingenuity and pioneering spirit of Louis Braille.

In the year 1809, the stars must have been heavily fraught with fate. That year witnessed the birth of Abraham Lincoln, whose life was to have a momentous influence on the American political and social structure; Edgar Allan Poe, who was to have a lasting influence on literature by creating the short story form; and Charles Darwin, whose Origin of Species was to influence scientific thinking and arouse philosophic controversy for decades. Also in that fateful year was born in the little village of Coupvray, France, a man whose effect on the education of the blind surpasses anything that has been done before or since. That man was Louis Braille, and his contribution was to devise a system of reading and writing for the blind based upon various combinations of raised dots. This system, basically unchanged but enlarged and somewhat modified to accommodate the characteristics of different languages, is used by the blind throughout the civilized world today and bears the name of its creator, braille.

Louis Braille's father was a harnessmaker, and at the age of three, the boy injured his eye with an awl while playing in his father's shop. Infection and eventual blindness resulted. When he was ten, Louis entered the Institute for Blind Youth in Paris. This school was founded by Valentin Huay, who had been able to make a very few books available for his blind students by embossing enlarged letters. However, this "line letter" system was difficult to master; reading necessarily was slow; there was no way for the blind to write it themselves. The few books available only succeeded in whetting Braille's insatiable hunger for more reading and knowledge.

When Louis was 12, a retired army captain named Barbier visited the school. He had devised a system of raised dots and dashes representing different sounds in the French language which he had used for sending orders to his men at night; he suggested that it might be useful in teaching the blind. The authorities at the school flatly rejected Barbier's "night writing," as they were convinced that a system of reading used by the blind must approximate as nearly as possible that employed by the sighted. Braille, however, like a true pioneer, was prepared to take a completely fresh approach, free from preconceived notions and designed to meet the special circumstances and needs of the blind. To him, Barbier's "night writing" was the key for which he had been searching. He abandoned Barbier's dashes and devised his system based on different arrangements of six dots, representing letters rather than sounds.

Braille's system has proved wonderfully adaptable for use in various languages. A large number of contractions has been added to conserve space and increase speed of reading. These contractions vary with the language, depending upon the frequency of occurrence of different combinations of letters. It has also been possible to represent diacritical and phonetic markings in braille, such as those used to indicate pronunciation in dictionaries.

Braille himself designed a system for representing musical notation. This has since been greatly enlarged and codified. The same symbols which represent letters in braille can be used to represent numbers by preceding them with a special braille symbol known as the number sign. For technical purposes, a highly complex system of mathematical and scientific notation has recently been developed. Braille printing presses and braille typewriters have greatly increased the volume of braille literature now available to the blind. Automation, too, has entered the field of braille, and computers have been programmed to produce braille in the less technical areas.

During Braille's lifetime, the authorities never accepted his revolutionary system; today, however, his coffin rests in the Pantheon among the greatest immortals of French history, and his home in Coupvray is preserved as a shrine. May his spirit of imaginative innovation, realism, and dedication be similarly enshrined by modern educators of the blind.

PROOFREADERS CERTIFIED BY THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

There are two types of certification in braille proofreading: namely, A and B.

The proofreader holding the A Certificate is qualified to make corrections in braille transcriptions and may proofread for individuals, groups, or the Library of Congress.

The proofreader holding the B Certificate does not make corrections in braille transcriptions and is qualified to proofread only when corrections are made by the braillist.
